PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The legend of Santa Claus can be traced back hundreds of years to a monk named St. Nicholas. It is believed that Nicholas was born around A.D. 280 in Patara, near Myra in modern-day Turkey. Even though he was born in Turkey, and he died in Turkey, he was Greek. Among many other things, St. Nicholas is the patron saint of children, sailors, merchants and brewers. I find this group to be a unique combination, but that's why history can be so much fun. The tradition of Christmas presents came from St. Nicholas' habit of secretly giving gifts to people. During his life, St. Nicholas worked numerous miracles, including the rescuing of three maidens from being forced into prostitution, by their own father no less, and saving three men wrongfully condemned to death. Merry Christmas and enjoy the Holidays.

Inside this issue

Dubuque loves its holidays, and none more than Christmas. The city is filled with more happenings than Santa has presents, providing traditional events as well as special programs to mark the season. Learn about them on page 14.

If you've driven or walked past Dubuque's Washington Park in the days leading up to Christmas, you've probably noticed the life-sized nativity scene set up along Locust Street. Learn its history dating back to 1941 on page 17.

With the announcement of the top 10 Envision 2030 ideas to strengthen the region, the people we call neighbors are once again set to make amazing things happen. Learn about big ideas for Dubuque's future on page 20.

The spirit of connection makes the holidays a perfect time for a different kind of sharing—talking about the values and intentions behind your family's finances. Read more on page 23.

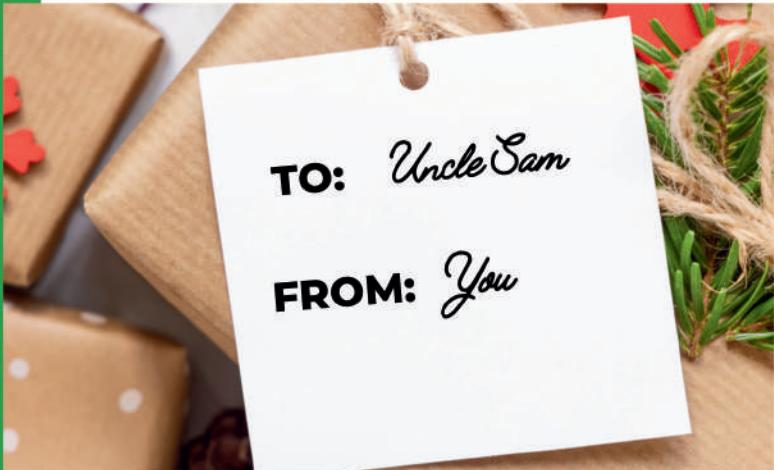

The Vault is a unique restaurant offers diverse dishes, especially for those who consider themselves "foodies" or "cocktail enthusiasts." Read our review on page 27.

If you're looking to cut down on alcohol during the Holidays or if you're the designated driver, non-alcoholic beer is a great choice. Read our review of The Wave non-alcoholic beer on page 29.

TeamWine reviews a very nice white wine and a red wine that are suitable for the Holidays, neither of which will break the bank on page 30.

The History of Washington Park's Christmas Nativity

by Connie Cherba

If you've driven or walked past Dubuque's Washington Park in the days leading up to Christmas, you've probably noticed the life-sized nativity scene set up along Locust Street between 6th and 7th Streets. The nativity has been a treasured Dubuque Christmas tradition since 1941, according to Auleen Eberhardt who was involved with the nativity in its very beginning.

The first "Christmas Crib" was displayed in a store front window of the lower Main St. Frommelt Awning Co. During WWII, the nativity display was erected near a massive Christmas tree that served as a memorial to Dubuque servicemen and women. Edward Graham, then president of Dubuque's Downtown Association, encouraged the Catholic Mothers Study Clubs to purchase life-sized statues to enhance the nativity display.

In 1977, the twenty-two-year-old Dubuque Community Christmas Crib statues were in bad shape and were replaced with "brand-spanking new plastic figures." A successful fund drive by the Dubuque Community

Christmas Crib Committee and the Catholic Mothers Study Clubs raised more than $1,500 for the purchase of new nativity

Back in 1988 there were questions about the constitutionality of Dubuque's nativity holiday tradition. Folks were worried that a Supreme Court ruling on the separation of church and state might call for evicting the nativity from Washington Park. Eberhardt said, "That park has always been a haven for protests and rallies. Therefore, this is my rally for the Christ child. I believe this park is open to all...and I can't see why there should be any reason to complain about our crib there." A 1989 Supreme Court decision allowed local city legal experts to determine that the nativity was allowed on public property because it was not government sponsored and because other religious traditions could be allowed to erect similar displays in the park.

Ron Kann, a Dubuque firefighter, was responsible for setting up the nativity in Washington Park for some twenty-five years until he retired. In 1988, the Dubuque chapter of the Pioneers of the Telephone Company, a service organization of telephone company retirees and present and former employees, agreed to accept the job of erecting the crèche at Washington Park. They cleaned and re-stained the figures and rebuilt sections of the wooden crèche structure.

Fast forward to 2008 and the kings and shepherds along with Mary, Joseph, and baby Jesus were falling apart, and the winter weather had taken its toll on the angels, shepherds, and sheep too. The Catholic Mothers Study Clubs and the Dubuque Knights of Columbus Council 510 banded together and raised enough money to buy replicas of Mary, Joseph, Jesus, a hovering angel, a kneeling shepherd, and some manger animals. Maurna Stover, chairwoman of the nonprofit Dubuque Community Christmas Crib Committee said, "This is a sharing of public faith as a Christian community. Washington Square is the most appropriate location for the scene because it is the site of Dubuque's first fledgling Christian church."

For many years, the Dubuque Community Christmas Crib Committee hosted a formal nativity dedication ceremony in Washington Park in mid-December. Ecumenical religious services, soloists including Dubuque's Bob Casper and Kerin Moldenhauer, choirs, singing groups, guitar trios, and a flashlight march through the park added to the festivities.

of Iowa and one of the first councils west of the Mississippi River. Founded in 1900 as a Catholic Fraternal Organization, Council No. 510 celebrated its 125th anniversary on April 29, 2025.

Craig Forbes, a former Grand Knight and current Trustee of Council No. 510, has been involved with the nativity display since the beginning of the partnership with the Catholic Mothers Study Clubs almost twenty years ago and through the transition when the Knights took over full responsibility for the display. Craig still coordinates the set up, take down, and storage of the nativity each year.

Jim Sigwarth became the Grand Knight of Council No. 510 in 2021, but he's been involved with the nativity in the park for the past ten years. "We usually have a crew of 8-15, made up of Knights and family members to help with the set up and take down of the nativity," he said. "We traditionally schedule the set-up early on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, and we schedule taking it down on the Saturday of the weekend when the Feast of the Epiphany is celebrated in the churches."

Set up can be difficult and uncomfortable, especially when the winter temperatures drop well below freezing. Jim said while it takes two to three hours to set up the nativity, it takes about half that time to take it down.

"The biggest challenge is just making sure we have enough people there to help," he said. Storage of the life-sized figures and large wooden stable has been another challenge. "When the Knights were approached in 2008 to partner with this project, Jim Theisen offered to store the wooden nativity stable pieces in his store's warehouse and we kept the figures in our hall," Jim said. "After we sold the hall recently, all components of the display are being stored in the Theisen Warehouse."

Dubuque is fortunate that organizations throughout the years have banded together to make sure the nativity display continues to grace Washington Park. Jim said, "The Knights have always promoted family values and Catholic traditions. We think that helping ensure that the nativity display is erected yearly in our city square is a great way to keep Christ in Christmas!"♦

10 Big Ideas for Dubuque's Future

The Envision 2030 Steering Committee

The final Envision 2030 ideas reflect a community-wide desire for new amenities, improved social services, and resources that enable everyone to thrive.

When Dubuque residents gather and dream big, amazing things happen. They bring new resources to the community, build new amenities, and improve the quality of life for their neighbors.

With the announcement of the top 10 Envision 2030 ideas to strengthen the region, the people we call neighbors are once again set to make amazing things happen.

During The Big Reveal event at the Dubuque Museum of Art on October 16, Envision

2030 facilitators – the Community Foundation of Greater Dubuque and Dubuque Area Chamber of Commerce – literally uncovered the top 10 ideas, announcing them to a crowd of 300 eager people.

“We all love this place so much that we have dared to dream up the biggest, most impactful ideas to make it even better than it is today,” Nancy Van Milligen, the Community Foundation’s president and CEO, told the crowd.

“This process has ignited the passion of our fellow community members and empowered them to not just imagine the future of our region but to shape it.”

The top 10 ideas, in no particular order, are:

1. Heart of Play: All-Ages Sports Hub
2. Industry to Innovation: Dubuque South Port Revitalization
3. Grow, Cultivate, Eat: Access to Healthy Food
4. Great Minds: Collaborative Brain Health Services
5. Book and Build: Expanded Library Services
6. Captivating Shorelines: Mississippi Riverfront Reimagined
7. Ageless Support: Center for Senior Well-Being

Envision 2030 Top 10 Ideas

Heart of Play: All-Ages Sports Hub. Build a modern, indoor/outdoor sports complex where athletes of all ages come together to compete, learn, and develop, that also serves as a regional gathering place for tournaments and other events.

Industry to Innovation: Dubuque South Port Revitalization. Transform Dubuque's historical center of timber industry into a thriving, vibrant, connected neighborhood with housing, retail, entertainment, and outdoor recreation attractions.

Grow, Cultivate, Eat: Access to Healthy Food. Create an accessible, sustainable, and resilient local food ecosystem by empowering community members to engage in urban farming, foster ecological health, and connect with the processes that promote well-being.

Great Minds: Collaborative Brain Health Services. Build on the region's brain health progress to bridge gaps in services, with the goals of reaching individuals and families of all ages and providing support grounded in harm reduction.

Book and Build: Expanded Library Services. Deepen connections between local libraries and communities by establishing neighborhood branches and mobile units, extending operating hours, and enhancing access to everyday necessities, from technology to tools.

Captivating Shorelines: Mississippi Riverfront Reimagined. Enhance river access with new recreational and educational amenities to drive economic activity, foster health and wellness, and build a stronger connection between our community and America's River.

Ageless Support: Center for Senior Well-Being. Create a regional hub to promote the health, independence and wellness of older adults that offers opportunities for socialization, health and fitness offerings, transportation assistance, and meal services.

Water-Powered Fun: Community Aquatic Center. Develop a new, centrally located complex for the region that offers accessible recreational and fitness features, including designated indoor and outdoor areas for lap swimming, water therapy, and children's activities.

Putting Down Roots: Community-Centered Housing. Increase housing options for all by focusing on creating more "missing middle" residences, inter-generational living options, and resident-owned mobile home parks.

Where Curiosity Sprouts: Children's Museum. Establish an interactive children's museum that serves as a vibrant hub for families to explore, learn and play together, with a focus on immersive STEAM programming, hands-on exhibits, and educational workshops.❖

No idea is too small, too ambitious, or too outrageous!

9. Putting Down Roots: Community-Centered Housing

10. Where Curiosity Sprouts: Children's Museum

To announce the ideas, the Foundation commissioned pieces from local artists, each of whom was asked to interpret one of the top 10 ideas in their style. The art was displayed at The Big Reveal alongside covered posters that, when uncovered, prominently displayed the big idea along with an artist's statement.

The pieces ranged from vibrant paintings on canvas to sculptures to mixed media creations, while the artists included longtime fixtures of the local art scene to newcomers who just recently started creating. Guests had the opportunity to bid on the art, with proceeds going to the Envision 2030 fund.

When members of the Envision 2030 Steering Committee announced each idea, cheers erupted from the crowd. For many in attendance, the ideas represent important steps toward projects and initiatives that have long been on the community's wish list.

"As a father, I think a children's museum is going to be such a cool amenity for Dubuque, not just as an educational resource but also because places like that end up developing core memories for families," said steering committee member Brandon Lynch.

One of the key tenets of the Envision 2030 process was to ensure that voices representing the spectrum of Dubuque's demographics were included. In total, community members submitted more than 3,000 ideas.

"We wanted to make sure something for everyone is reflected in this top 10," said steering committee member Wendy Scardino.

While the past seven months have been filled with imagination and excitement, the next phase of the process is when the tough work begins. Community members and organizations will be responsible for owning the ideas and finding ways to implement them by 2030.

When the Community Foundation tackled a similar project 20 years ago with Envision 2010, a combination of civic engagement, nonprofit expertise and donor support helped make the previous top 10 ideas, including the Millwork District revitalization, Crescent Community Health Center and the riverwalk, reality. Each started as idea, and many became today's beloved assets.

With the Envision 2030 results now set and local leaders already forming plans to implement the ideas, Dubuque has an opportunity to build the future that residents imagine.

"This process highlights something I've found to be true since the Community Foundation opened its doors in 2003," Van Milligen said. "Amazing things happen when people are engaged in their community." ♦

THE GIFT OF FINANCIAL PEACE: WHAT TO DISCUSS WITH YOUR FAMILY THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

by Keith Leverentz

Every year, my family hosts a White Elephant gift exchange. The rules are simple: everyone brings something funny or unexpected—maybe a Chia Pet or a Snuggie—and the best part is watching what happens when someone's favorite gift gets "stolen." There's plenty of laughter, a little strategy, and always a reminder that what really matters is being together.

That same spirit of connection makes the holidays a perfect time for another kind of sharing—talking about the values and intentions behind your family's finances. Not the numbers themselves, but the meaning: what you hope your hard work provides, and how you'd like it to support the people you love for generations.

These conversations don't have to be heavy or formal. They can be as simple as asking, "What does financial security mean to you?" or "What do you want our family to remember about how we handled money?" Small questions like these often open the door to deeper understanding.

SHARE YOUR MONEY STORY

Every family has one. Maybe you learned to save early, or maybe you remember a time when money was tight. Sharing those experiences helps your children and grandchildren see money as a tool, not a mystery. It gives context to your choices and helps them understand the values behind them—security, generosity, or simply peace of mind.

CLARIFY YOUR WISHES

It's not always an easy topic, but peace of mind may be the greatest gift you can give your family. Talk about where important documents are kept, who should be contacted if something happens, and what matters most when it comes to your legacy. These conversations reduce confusion later and strengthen trust now.

THINK ABOUT THE BIGGER PICTURE

Many families find it helpful to work with a financial firm that brings together professionals from multiple disciplines—advisors, CPAs, attorneys, and other specialists who see income, tax, and estate planning as parts of one whole. When every element of your financial life works together, you gain more than organization—you gain peace. A well-aligned plan not only protects what you've built, it helps everyone feel confident about the road ahead.

GIVE THE GIFT OF PEACE FOR THE NEW YEAR

As the season winds down and a new year begins, take a moment to note what you'd like to revisit when life slows down again in January. Whether it's updating documents, reviewing your tax plan, or meeting with a trusted financial advisor to bring it all together, you'll enter the new year with more confidence and peace—and that might be the best gift of all. ♦

THE VAULT IS A FOODIE AND COCKTAIL ENTHUSIASTS DREAM

The Vault Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge located in The German Bank, which was built in 1901 by the Schrup family. This building was the most modern and beautiful structure on Main Street at the time of its construction and included a fireproof vault that was three stories tall. The main floor was designated for the German Bank, while the other two were spacious apartments. Because of its success, the German Bank outgrew the facility and became American Trust and Savings Bank after World War I when it relocated to Ninth and Main. Fast Forward over one hundred twenty years...

Since its beginnings as a bank, The Vault's building has served as a home to many different businesses, including many fine dining establishments. The Vault is currently owned by Jesse Elliot and Will Pearce, who have been providing the community with quality ingredients and exceptional service since March of 2020. Although some things may have changed within the building, history lovers can rest assured that the original main floor bank vault remains, embracing the building's history for all to enjoy.

This unique restaurant offers diverse dishes, especially for those who consider themselves "foodies" or "cocktail enthusiasts." The menu also expands with the addition of week and weekend features for diners to enjoy. Two best sellers the menu boasts are the Prime Rib French Dip, the Cajun Pasta Bowl, and the French Onion New York Strip Steak.

The cocktail menu takes classic cocktails and gives them a signature Vault twist. The Lavender Bees Knee Martini is nothing short of the Bees Knees, while the Marshmallow Espresso Martini is sure to please. For the customers who don't drink alcohol, The Vault mixes up mocktails and even has their very own mocktail menu!

For those looking to host a business meeting, birthday party, or any other special event, The Vault is happy to host. Managers work to design a menu and atmosphere that works for each individual event. Events are fun and easy to have in this wonderful downtown location.

Customers can dine and then head off to enjoy many other attractions downtown Dubuque has to offer. The business is conveniently located next to a parking ramp that runs at a rate of just a dollar an hour.

The menu at The Vault is one cultivated with care, allowing for the ingredients to really shine and provide an experience for the guest. Starting a meal at The Vault with one of their savory appetizers is a great way to elevate the dining adventure, like enjoying the Tenderloin Bites, which are glazed with balsamic and covered in blue cheese. Speaking of cheese, Wisconsin Cheese Curds adorn the menu, along with Jalapeno Poppers stuffed with a smooth cream cheese filling. Many customers also rave about the Giant Pretzel, served with queso for dipping, and never disappointing in size and salty goodness.

If you are not looking for a full dinner, several sandwich options are available to enjoy, including your choice of French fries, coleslaw, soup, sweet potato fries, a side salad, or Jasmine rice. Gluten free buns, black bean patties, and chicken breast are also available for those with dietary restrictions. The Prime Rib French Dip is covered in provolone, horseradish cream, peppers, onions, and mushrooms. Two burgers, the Vault, loaded with onion straws, cheddar, bacon, and roasted red pepper aioli, and The Arugula Ranch Burger, adorned with provolone, caramelized onions, arugula, tomatoes, and jalapeno ranch, are crowd pleasers for anyone. If chicken is more your speed, they offer a Nashville Chicken Sandwich and a Caprese Chicken, depending on your desire for spice or Mediterranean.

The main courses at the Vault, however, are real showstoppers. Each includes a choice of starch- French fries, mashed potatoes, baby baked potatoes, parmesan asparagus, sweet potato fries, or Jasmine rice and a salad. The Blackberry Bourbon Glazed Pork Ribeyes are a delicious chop duo covered in a house-

If Beef is what you're after, the French Onion New York Strip is grilled to perfection and covered in grilled onions and fontina Gouda cheese blend or try the Filet Mignon topped in a red wine reduction.

If pasta speaks more to your soul, The Vault is certainly willing to answer with their creamy chicken gnocchi, Parmesan Steak Alfredo, Cajun Pasta, or Pesto Tortellini. Each of these comes with soup or salad and the option to substitute gluten free noodles. If sea fare is more your style, the Bourbon Glazed Salmon or the Red Snapper may be for you. Shrimp and Fish and Chips are also a more traditional offering, but the Bang Bang Salmon Bowl is anything but ordinary with Jasmine rice, cucumber, avocado, green onions, and a deliciously spicy bang bang sauce to top it all off.

Kids are not forgotten with a simple, but enjoyable menu including burgers, mac and cheese, chicken strips, and mini corn dogs. Of course, those looking for a lighter option can enjoy a salad that is anything but boring. The Steak Salad has USDA choice steak, avocado, bleu cheese, red onion, and bleu cheese dressing, while Chipotle Chicken Salad includes Pico de Gallo, cheese, avocado, and ranch. For a fruitier find the Apple Feta boasts chicken, apples, grapes, candied pecans, dried cranberries, feta cheese, and a hot bacon vinaigrette, while the Lemon Blueberry Salad is topped with Feta cheese, cucumbers red onion, fresh blueberries, and candied pecans, covered in the signature lemon vinaigrette.

One thing is for sure, if you want to "lock up" good flavor, The Vault is a "safe" bet. Enjoying this historic downtown establishment only makes "cents." ♦

WHAT WE'RE DRINKING: FREE WAVE

ABV: N/A (>0.5%)

Who Brews It:

Athletic Brewing Co.

Where you can find it: Grocery and liquor stores

Expected Price: $11.99 for a six pack of cans

It's December, which means that you likely have a slew of holiday parties and New Year celebrations on your calendar. Many of these celebrations involve alcohol. While there's nothing wrong with having a drink - this is a column dedicated to reviewing beer after all - non-alcoholic drinks can be a healthy and interesting alternative. So, if you're looking to cut down on alcohol for your New Year's resolution, or if you're the designated driver for a holiday function, non-alcoholic beer is a great choice. We'll be reviewing a non-alcoholic beer this time, Free Wave by Athletic Brewing Co.

A non-alcoholic beer must be under 0.5% ABV to be classified as non-alcoholic in America. This means that, technically, non-alcoholic beers do contain alcohol; however, the amount of alcohol is negligible. You consume alcohol any time you eat a fermented food or drink, so if you're a fan of kombucha, kimchi, soy sauce, and even bread, you're consuming the same amount of alcohol that is found in a non-alcoholic beer. It's largely impossible to completely avoid all traces of alcohol, so don't feel like you're being misled when you read the "contains less than 0.5% alcohol" label on a non-alcoholic beverage.

So, what does a non-alcoholic beer taste like? Truthfully, it's very similar to a standard beer, though there are some noticeable differences. As a general rule, non-alcoholic beer tastes sweeter than alcoholic beer due to differences in yeast fermentation. They also have a much lighter body and a less dense mouthfeel. If you're trying an IPA or a hoppy non-alcoholic beer, you'll find that the lack of alcohol also impacts the hops. During fermentation, the interaction between yeast and hops creates new aromatic compounds, which then results in greater depth of flavor. Generally speaking, there is much more variance in how a non-alcoholic IPA tastes than a non-alcoholic lager.

Non-alcoholic beer is brewed similarly to standard beer. You begin with your malt, hops (if desired), yeast, and water. At this point, there are multiple ways to make sure that your beer qualifies as non-alcoholic. One way to remove alcohol is to brew the beer as normal then remove the alcohol through vacuum distillation. The alcoholic beer is put in a vacuum chamber to achieve a lower atmospheric pressure. The beer is then gently heated until the alcohol boils and evaporates. The alcohol-free beer is then cooled and recarbonated. Alternatively, special types of yeast that do not produce ethanol during fermentation are being tried.

With all of this said, what does Free Wave specifically taste like? If you're a fan of hoppy beers but dislike the idea of ingesting 7.2% ABV to get the taste, Free Wave is a great alternative. The hoppy flavors of Amarillo, Citra and Mosaic are especially pronounced. Without the counterbalancing alcohol, the hops are isolated, hitting fast then fading fast. Overall, the beer has a bright amber color and low carbonation, which means that it is a very smooth drink. There is minimal aftertaste - the sweet, citrus tastes of grapefruit and tangerine quickly vanish from your palate after a swallow.

At your next social gathering this holiday season, consider reaching for a non-alcoholic beer. Most bars and event venues keep non-alcoholic beers around to accommodate designated drivers, individuals with religious exceptions, or those who simply dislike feeling drunk. There's a surprising variety of NA options, so whether it's Free Wave or a different drink, give it a try. You might be surprised by how close non-alcoholic beers are to regular beer nowadays. ♦

GOOD CHEER & HOLIDAY WINES

“There is nothing like wine for conjuring up feelings of contentment and goodwill. It is less of a drink than an experience, an evocation, a spirit. It produces sensations that defy description.”

Thomas Conklin, Wine: A Primer

SIPS

TeamWine wishes the best to you and yours this holiday season. And, to get you off on the right foot, or maybe I should say, the proper glass, we've got a very nice white and red for your enjoyment, neither of which will break the bank. These wines, both from Italy, were selected by Angela and Erin. We felt the white is a nice wine to begin a dinner or party, and would pair with practically anything, while the red would be better with some heartier noshes or even as one to sip after dinner with conversation. See what you think.

Our white wine is Gavi. Gavi is made with Cortese grapes and is from Gavi, Italy. This bottle was purchased at Aldi's (12.5% abv, $9.99). The color was very clear with just a hint of straw, yellow and soft green. We picked out light aromas of almond, vanilla spice, apple blossom and honey notes. Peach blossoms were on the palate along with a bit of lemon rind and a sweet licorice. There was pleasing acidity and minerality on the palate, especially on the edges. The body was fuller than I anticipated, resulting in a velvety mouthfeel. We were mixed on pairings as I liked it with olives, while another didn't. The wine enhanced the salted nuts, and we all thought it went well with the tinned fish and would pair nicely with pasta. We feel this wine would be best served quite cold. We liked that it was priced very reasonably. Enjoy this wine to start an evening, or while leisurely reading a book.

Our Italian red was a Ca'Storica 2021 Amarone della Valpolicella. Purchased at Trader Joe's (14% abv, $17.99) this wine was made using the “appassimento” method, meaning the grapes were first dried then pressed. The wine was aged in wood then bottle-aged for at least six months before release. It had a bright, dark garnet color. We had wide range of earthy aroma notes of smoke, forest path (think cedar & balsa), woody spices, cigar and mushrooms. The fruit scents included baked cherry, plum pudding and cranberry. The fruits really came through on the palate with dark cherry leading the way, spicy plum, dark chocolate and some tobacco. The finish was pleasing and had a deep sweetness, much like dark toffee. We sort of wanted to hang onto the last sip to prolong the sensations. The wine was full-bodied with soft and balanced tannins. This wine did not so much reach out and grab you, but rather it lured you into its domain. We felt this would pair with risotto, pasta, red meats—especially beef and game, or rich cheeses. Of course, TeamWine found it made a splendid partner with the dark chocolate. This wine would be a lovely after-dinner beverage while having good conversation, doing a jigsaw puzzle or otherwise being with friends around a fire.

TIPS

December is a perfect month to explore new wines. Stop by your favorite retailer and buy a bottle of something you've never tasted. Then, invite a friend, or two, over and open it and see what you think. Be sure to have a couple of cheeses on hand, maybe some humus, and some unseasoned crackers and make notes of what you like or not like.

And, here's a Christmas gift idea for yourself. If you'd like to be part of TeamWine for a tasting, send an email to John@juliensjournal.com, with the subject “Guest Taster”. Beginning in January, we are going to invite one person/couple to join us for a tasting and be recognized as a TeamWine member in that month's column. Experience isn't necessary, just a desire to learn a bit more about wine. We look forward to meeting you! ♦

Happy Holidays to you all!
